Ironwood Forest National Monument

"Meet the Monument" Event

November 16, 2013

The third annual Meet the Monument is taking place at the Ironwood Forest National Monument on 16 November 2013.

This event is NOT a festival -- its a chance for participants to EXPERIENCE the unspoiled desert through walks, talks, and guided nature hikes that focus on nature, geology, birds, herpetology, photography, botany, and through lectures by U of A and other local naturalists, faculty and experts. Returning this year will be members of the Yaqui Tribe, sharing a performance of the Yoeme Deer Dancers at our closing ceremony.

There is no cost involved with experiencing this event which was initially planned for October 19th, but was postponed due to the government shutdown. We are presently re-confirming speakers, hike leaders and volunteers.

For additional event details, directions or to provide assistance by volunteering to support this event visit the Friends of Ironwood Forest website at:

USGA Pace of Play

Did you know that more than half of all shots during a round of golf take place on or around the green? So reducing the time spent planning and hitting putts, chips and pitches can help improve pace of play.

In the third video of the USGA's six-part video series about pace of play, top instructors such as Butch Harmon and Suzy Whaley offer tips that will help you save time - and strokes - around the green. Click the link below to watch the video.
